LOCAL GROCERS ARE INDICTED

Pure Food Commissioner
Files Affidavits Against Rushville Merchants

PAPERS PROVE FAULTY

And Motion to Quash is Sustained by Mayor Cowing in Court Today

Two Rushville grocery firms, John A. Craig, of West First street, and Newhouse & Abernathy, proprietors of the Court House grocery, corner of Main and West First streets, were arrested today on a charge of violating the Pure Food laws of Indiana, on affidavits sworn out by State Deputy Pure Food Commissioner Tucker.

The instruments were sworn to and issued by the mayor of Peru. The grocers were before Mayor Cowing this morning, where it was found that the affidavits did not bear the seal of office of the mayor of Peru, and his honor sustained a motion to quash indictments for that omission.

The deputy commissioner was in this city several weeks ago, and found adulterated foodstuffs here, as noted in the Daily Republican at that time. The charges against the local grocers were brought by the State official, after buying three cents worth of vinegar of one firm and five cents worth of allspice from the other. He alleged that he found the vinegar adulterated with water and the allspice was found to be made of cocoanut shells.

The merchants, in turn, blame the wholesale houses for the impure and adulterated commodities which they sometimes have in stock.

NO NEED TO "HOLLER" OVER THE AUTOMATIC

The new automatic phone system will be completed and in running order in a few days.

Patrons of the company are requested not to talk as loudly as they did before the automatic service was installed; it is not necessary, as the new service gives a much more distinct result.

FALLING LEAVES A PEST TO MOTORMEN

Also To Householders and Others
—Two More Sweepings
Will be Needed

One by one the leaves are falling—sometimes, but they have mostly come down in showers during the past few days. There are large ricks of them everywhere and practically every householder is busy getting them removed. About two more sweepings and Labor's dream is over.

Leaves on the rails are making trouble for traction car motormen. The operators of the electric cars claim it is almost impossible to make the brakes lock when leaves are on the rails. The leaves also ground the current and cause sparking. This causes loss of power. The last frosts have denuded most of the trees which means an open winter whatever the prophets of gloom may say.

Special music will be rendered for the occasion.

WIRE THIEVES AT WORK IN THIS CITY

Lineman Hays Taken Into Custody and is Sweated by Officials

It is evident that a systematic stealing of copper wire and other telephone supplies has been going on in this city for some time, and the officers are now instituting a thorough investigation.

Lineman Hays, employed on the automatic construction work here, was taken into custody late this afternoon by City Marshal Price. It is thought he knows something about the Bell telephone wires which were cut and stolen a few days ago.

Two junk firms have received wire from the wire purloiners, but did not know it was stolen property.

Secretary Dale of the Automatic Co-Operative Telephone company said this afternoon that they have been missing supplies for several months.

The officials were "sweating" Hays at a late hour this afternoon and as near as can be ascertained, he declares that he is innocent, but he implicates another lineman.

WALKED OVER 52,500 MILES

Sudden Death of Aged Seamstress Who Would Never Ride

CORONER COLEMAN CALLED

Holds Inquest on Woman Who Expired Suddenly at the S.
& S. O. Home

Dr. Will S. Coleman, coroner of Rush county, completed his inquest Wednesday evening in the case of Miss Anna Byerly, who fell dead at the Sailors and Soldiers Orphans' Home the previous day. Death was due to heart failure.

Miss Byerly fell dead as she was leaving the dining room. She was eighty-seven years old, and had been in the employ of the home as seamstress since 1871. Until the last year she always walked back and forth, a distance of about four miles and she could not be induced to ride in the regular hack. During this time she had, according to a conservative estimate of her friends, walked at least 52,500 miles.

HE ASKED SPARKS WHAT HE WOULD DO

And the Judge Told Him He Would "Do Time" For a While

Charles Jones, confined in the county jail serving a ninety days' sentence for wife beating, says the Shelbyville Democrat, wrote a letter to Judge Sparks yesterday asking the Judge what would be the best thing to do under the circumstances. The letter was properly sealed and stamped and placed in the care of Deputy Sheriff Ben Laws. Judge Sparks laconically remarked in his opinion the best thing he knew for Jones to do would be to remain with the sheriff. Under the conditions it is believed he will.

PROGRAM OF LECTURE COURSE BEGINS ON TIME

The program for the Rushville Lecture course Friday evening at St. Paul's M. E. church will begin promptly on time. The time set for the first number on the program is set for 8:10 p. m. and those desiring to get all the program should not go later than that time.

WILL CUT INTO CHICKENS WITH THEIR SHARP AXES

A large class of wood choppers will be initiated at Falmouth next Tuesday night, where a new camp of Modern Woodmen will be instituted. All neighbors, throughout the county, are invited to see the work and enjoy the sumptuous banquet which will be served. The Connersville degree team will do the work.

"I suspect the playbills do not always tell the exact truth," responded Hamlett Fatt. "For instance, I am billed as being assisted by a large company when the fact is I am retarded by the few people I have."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STRIKE ON IN RUSH COUNTY

Employees of Richland Township Stone Quarry Walk
Out For Higher Wages

BULLTOWN ON A STRIKE

It is Feared There Will be a General
Strike in the Hill
Country

Word comes from Richland township that there is a strike on in the Lefforge stone quarry there. The employees, on account of the cost of living, struck for an increase in wages from fifteen to twenty cents per hour.

On Monday, a committee waited on "Boss" Murphy and informed him what was demanded. Mr. Murphy refused to comply with their demand and they walked out.

Tuesday morning, Mr. Murphy hired a new set of men to go into the quarries. Two of the strikers came back the next day, however, and went to work again. The stone quarries at Bulltown just east of Andersonville have also struck for higher wages and it is feared that the "epidemic" will reach the Laurel quarries before the end of the week.

"JACK" SHIDLER RESIGNS POSITION

Popular I. & C. Employee Will Leave For Indianapolis—"No Mean City"

With the general offices of the I. & C. traction company, there came to Rushville many first class citizens, and in every instance gentlemen, in all that the word implies. It is not often that such is the case where a company employs a large number of men, and too often, when men come from the larger cities, as was the case with the I. & C. crowd, they try to make a "splurge" and affect an air of superiority over "small town-folk." But not so with the I. & C. "bunch"; they were just the opposite in disposition.

It was given out today at the general offices, that "Jack" Shidler, one of the popular employees, and private secretary to E. E. Moore, superintendent of the civil engineering department, had resigned, and would leave immediately for his home city, Indianapolis—the "no mean city"—where he will work at a clerical position.

"Jack" Shidler made many friends during his residence of three years here, who are pained to see him leave.

O. C. BRANN RUPTURED A BLOOD VESSEL TUESDAY

O. C. Brann was compelled to go home from his grocery store Tuesday, says the Greenfield Star, on account of an injury he received while moving some boxes. He ruptured a blood vessel in one of his legs.

MILROY SCHOOL FINISHED SAVE INSTALLING FURNACE

The new Milroy school is completed with the exception of installing the furnaces. The teachers and patrons who are now dealing in knowledge in a number of upstairs and various odd and endrooms, will welcome this news.

THANKSGIVING MEAL WILL BE VERY EXPENSIVE

From all Parts of the Country
Comes Reports of Shortage in Turkey Crop

Thanksgiving this year will come on November 28th and the indications now are that the midday meal on that day of thankfulness will be an unusually expensive one and especially will this be true if turkeys are served at the meal. From all parts of the country come reports of a shortage in the turkey crop this year and local wholesale poultry dealers say the crop is especially short in this county.

PUBLIC'S EYE IS ON RUSHVILLE

Turned This Direction by the Progressive Young Farmers of Rush County

THE MEN WHO DO THINGS

Are Responsible For Institution of First District Corn School in the State

The press bureau of Purdue University is sending out the following bulletins, regarding the district corn and stock judging school to be held here December 16th to 21st.

The farmers of the Sixth congressional district of Indiana have decided to hold a corn and stock judging school at Rushville during the week 16th to 21st of December, 1907. By holding this school in the district the work will reach a large number of farmers who cannot arrange to leave home to attend the Purdue Farmers' Short Course. Instruction in the scoring of corn and stock will be given each day, together with lectures on the various lines of work.

Purdue Experiment Station will co-operate in this movement and will place G. I. Christie and W. A. Cochel in charge of the instruction. The promise of these men to be present insures a successful course and high grade work. In connection with the corn and stock work a course in Domestic Science has been arranged for. Mrs. Margaret Mather Romine, who is one of the best domestic science instructors in the State will have charge of this line.

Rushville has excellent railway facilities which accommodate all parts of the district. The School is held after the rush of work is over. The instruction will be the best ever given. Therefore every farmer, his wife, sons and daughters should plan to attend the first Sixth District corn and stock judging school. Schedules, etc., may be had of T. A. Coleman, chairman, Rushville, Ind.

GREED OF GOLD THE GREAT SIN

And is Ruining Many a Man's Soul, Declares Rev.
R. W. Abberley

THE REVIVAL CONTINUES

Special Music is Great Feature in the Services at Christian Church

"How to Make the Best of Both Worlds" was the theme discussed at the Main Street Christian church Wednesday night by Rev. R. W. Abberley. The subject was a practical one and was of vital interest, especially to young men and women.

In speaking of the problem which men often ponder over, the pastor said in part: "There are problems that come up in business which determine our welfare for a year or possibly a lifetime, as far as this world is concerned but, when Jesus said 'what doth it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul,' he propounded a problem which reaches out into eternity and deals with two worlds."

The pastor spoke briefly on men going mad over money in which he said "One of the greatest sins of this age is the greed for gold; thousands of people, like Israel of old are worshipping the Gold calf. There are some men, if they had North America for a farm, they would want South America for a pasture. And yet wealth does not bring peace of mind and happiness. Ask the multi-millionaire if he is at peace of mind and if he would tell the truth, he would answer no."

"Money," said Rev. Abberley, "is the passport into every place but Heaven. The best things in life," said he "don't cost money—God's blessed sunshine, peace of mind, happiness and health are free. Many a society is a mockery and many a mansion has a skeleton in the closet, and if you knew the truth it is often not a place of happiness for 'all is not gold that glitters.'"

Rev. Abberley emphasized the worth of a soul in the following words: "The price that Christ laid upon a soul was the sufferings on the cross and death, and if he died for the soul of man it must be of great value."

He painted word picture of innocent childhood and implored fathers and mothers to be careful how that their boys and girls were brought up, "for who knows," said he, "whether or not by your neglect, your boy of today will be the drunkard of tomorrow. Influence your sons and daughters to come into the church and the service of the Master, before they go away in sin, which abounds on every hand."

In closing, the pastor illustrated an auction sale in which the souls of men and women were being bid upon; "the world is bidding for your soul," said he, "houses and land and gold; the flesh is bidding, lusts of flesh and temporary pleasures; Satan bids disappointment and eternal ruin, but Christ, what does he bid for your soul? Hope of heaven, and eternal happiness. Which will you take?"

Prof. Frank M. Charlton, who is leading the large choruses by his unceasing efforts since he came to this city, has them well trained and under his direction, they have become familiar with many new and beautiful songs, which are rendered at each service. Prof. Charlton is an excellent soloist and his songs are always appropriate. Last evening he sang "Somewhere, Sometime," which was one of the most impressive solos ever sang in this city.

Tonight, Rev. Abberley will preach on "The Ark, a Type of Salvation."

"Some so called statesmen," observed the philosophical boarder, "are merely political seismographs. They are always in a state of agitation over some upheaval that is threatening to destroy the foundations of civilization, but they can't tell exactly what it is or where it is."—Chicago Tribune.

CALLS FOR MONEY

In New York and the Entire East Appear to Have Been Satisfied.

NEW ORLEANS CLAMOROUS

Demand For Money to Move the Cotton Crop the Only Notable Feature of Financial Situation.

Conditions on Wall Street Seem to Have Again Settled Down to a Normal State.

New York, Oct. 31.—The financial situation is once more so nearly normal that there are few new features of importance. It is stated by bankers that the calls for money from the neighborhood of New York and the entire East appear to be practically satisfied, as such calls for currency of an urgent character as are being received come from points west of the Mississippi. These calls are being met as fast as conditions permit. Mr. Williams, the new state superintendent of banking, has gathered up most of the cash in the suspended banks and deposited it with going institutions, thereby adding several million dollars to the funds available in the market. The debit balances against banks at the clearing house are smaller than usual normal conditions, all such balances aggregating only a little more than $9,000,000 on clearings of $266,000.

One of the points at which the most serious pressure for money is expected is at New Orleans, in order to finance the movement of the cotton crop. The pressure there is always heavy at this season of the year, and promises to be even more intense this year than usual, unless special preparations are made.

The New Orleans bankers appear to be fully alive to this situation and are endeavoring to arrange for transfers of money from Europe in payment for cotton through the fiscal agents of the United States in Europe and its direct transmission to New Orleans.

A committee of New Orleans bankers is in Washington and hopes to secure a promise from Secretary Cortelyou of the deposit of substantial sums of public money in New Orleans and other Southern institutions. Secretary Cortelyou appears to recognize that the fact that benefits conferred by this policy will not be limited to New Orleans and the South, but will aid in the movement for the prompt delivery of American products in Europe and the creation of a credit balance which will cover the imports of gold. Cotton bills are being closely scrutinized in New York and cannot always be negotiated quite so promptly as in normal times, but where their character is unimpeachable they are recognized as forming one of the best means of covering the gold import movement. One of the most interesting developments of the situation is the large amount of the purchases of securities in small lots for investment. Most of the large private banking houses which sell stocks and bonds have been keeping the clerical force at work over time executing such orders and attending to the transfer of titles to the securities on the books of the corporation by which they are issued. This is one of the decisive marks of investment buying. It is estimated by good judges that there are 400,000 more names of stockholders on the books of the railway and industrial corporations than was the case a year ago. A single large firm reports sales between $500,000 and $750,000 per day. Another firm states that its wires to outlying places are crowded with small orders directing the transfer of the securities to the names of new owners, while still another firm declares that there has not been a movement of this kind of such volume for twenty years. While it requires a good many sales in small lots to reduce the mass of undigested securities on the stock market, the effect on every withdrawal from the quantity of speculative stocks is beneficial to the market. This is regarded as good augury by the bond dealers, whose market has been very flat for many months, but who believe that they will be able to dispose of many good securities as soon as the present flurry has subsided.

President Not Apprehensive.

Washington, Oct. 31.—E. W. Bloomingdale, director of the Phoenix National bank of New York, and otherwise financially connected in that city, has had an audience with President Roosevelt and is authority for the statement that the president is keeping minutely informed regarding financial conditions, not only in New York, but throughout the country, and that he feels no apprehension of serious trouble in any quarter. Mr. Bloomingdale said he obtained from Secretary Cortelyou an expression similar in character.

Killed By a Woman.

Middlesboro, Ky., Oct. 31.—At the Reliance mines, Mrs. John Fultz, a young woman, shot and killed John Settles. Settles is said to have threatened Mrs. Fultz when she remonstrated with him for mistreating a child. When he approached her to carry out his threat, she pulled a gun and killed him.

UNDERTOOK BIG JOB

Mutinous Torpedo Boat Goes Against Vladivostok Harbor Fleet.

Vladivostok, Oct. 31.—An exciting naval battle took place in this harbor yesterday between the mutinous crew of a Russian torpedo boat destroyer and their loyal comrades. The mutineers finally were subdued, but not before a number of men had been killed or wounded. The mutinous boat is the Skory, and she gave fight to the gunboat Manduchur, the destroyers Garsovoz, Smely and Serditz, and the garrison of one of the harbor forts manned by the Twelfth regiment of artillery. The Skory soon was overwhelmed and she had to be beached to save her from sinking. This was not accomplished, however, before her guns had done considerable damage and several officers and men of the other ships had been killed or wounded.

The crew of the Skory were incited by agitators, including some Jews, who managed to get on board and take charge of the destroyer. She steamed into the harbor with the red flag flying and at once opened fire on the town and forts. A gunboat and three destroyers went out to engage her, and with the aid of the forts soon had the Skory riddled and helpless. She then turned and ran through the surf and was beached. Those members of the crew who had not been killed or injured by the gun fire were arrested by soldiers as they made their way to land. Among the men killed are Captain Kurosch, commander of the torpedo boat Ravy, and Lieutenant Stoer, commander of the Skory; Lieutenant Vassilief, commanding the Sedits, was wounded. Several people in Vladivostok were killed by shells from the Skory. The town has been declared in a state of siege.

Election Incident at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 31.—The grand jury has returned an indictment against John J. Stanley, vice president and general manager of the Cleveland Electric Railway company, charging him with endeavoring to influence a witness. The specific allegation is that Stanley endeavored to influence the testimony of two witnesses in the investigation of cases of alleged illegal registration of voters by the grand jury preceding next Tuesday's city election.

Forced to the Wall.

New York, Oct. 31.—Inability to sell as usual their foreign drafts, and the serious illness of one of the partners who had been called upon to furnish immediate capital for maturing bills, brought about the assignment of Kessler & Co., international bankers. The firm has outstanding acceptances of between $500,000 and $1,000,000, but a detailed statement of liabilities and assets is not available.

New Step in Armament.

London, Oct. 31.—It was rumored here recently that the new British battleships of the Dreadnaught type were to have 13.5-inch instead of 12-inch guns. Such guns were being constructed, but it now appears that they are for two Brazilian battleships, the orders for which have been placed with the Armstrongs. These gigantic guns mark a notable step in naval construction. They will be mounted so that they will be able to concentrate their fire on either broadside.

Whittinger Sentenced for Life.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 31.—Joseph Whittinger, confessed slayer of Clarence Sommerfield, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and received a life sentence in Michigan City. Whittinger and Sommerfield had been in a buggy, and in the woods south of Lafayette, Whittinger shot Sommerfield for the purpose of getting possession of Sommerfield's horse and buggy. Whittinger has been in jail since Aug. 16, at which time Sommerfield was shot.

California Given a Respite.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 31.—Governor Gillette, who is at Eureka, has issued a proclamation announcing that today will be a public holiday and that like proclamations will follow each day indefinitely until confidence in the financial situation in this state has been restored. The proclamation was formally issued this morning before banking hours.

Two Boys and a Gun.

Middlesboro, Ky., Oct. 31.—Sam Whiteside and John Brooks, two boys playing together here, were the victims of a peculiar accident. Whiteside accidentally dropped a revolver from his pocket, which was discharged by the fall, and the bullet hit passed through Brooks's leg, shattering it, and then entered Whiteside's heart, killing him instantly.

This Bank Crowded Out.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 31.—The California Safe Deposit and Trust company has closed its doors. A notice was posted on the door stating that "owing to the fact that the bank was not a member of the Clearing House Association it was unable to take advantage of clearing house certificates. It would close for a few days."

Forger's Big Haul.

Madrid, Oct. 31.—A clever malefactor obtained the sum of $53,000 from the Bank of Spain by means of a check to which he had forged the name of Senor Anselmo, a former member of the chamber of deputies. No trace of the man has been found.

RIDERS GET BUSY

Invasion of Kentucky Tobacco Districts Creates Alarming Situation.

AN ARMY WITH BANNERS

On These Banners Appears the Legend "Peace Today; War Tomorrow," and Growers Are Fearful.

Where Demands to Abandon the Growing Crop Are Resisted, Force May Be Expected.

Louisville, Ky., October 31.—With "peaceful armies" of invasion in the dark tobacco districts and the burley growers having reached a decision not to raise any crop next year, the tobacco situation in Kentucky appears to be serious. From the western end of the state and especially in the Green river and Henderson stemming districts reports of rather an unsettling nature have been received.

Bodies of growers claiming to be members of the American Society of Equity are riding through McLean county notifying buyers to quit the tobacco fields until the 1908 crop is sold and urging growers to pool their crop with the society. The same thing has already been done in Daviess county, of which Owensboro is the county seat; in Henderson county, of which Henderson is the chief city, and in several other neighborhoods. In many instances the buyers have agreed to quit and the majority of the growers have expressed their determination to pool their crops, but especially in Henderson county has there been considerable opposition to the plan of the growers. In fact, the buyers of Henderson have refused to accede to the request of the growers and another meeting is in progress there to consider what is to be done in the premises. The growers are determined to carry their point and the buyers announce that they are also firm in their determination not to be bluffed into taking any action that may be detrimental to their interests.

Every warehouse of any consequence in Henderson and Owensboro is guarded by armed men, and there is considerable uneasiness. Especially is this true as the time for delivering the tobacco which has been bought outside the pool approaches.

Despite the fact that the growers declare they will not pursue any lawless methods, their banners when they first came into the Henderson stemming district in a body bore the legend, "Peace today, war tomorrow," and the people of the stemming district find it difficult to believe that there will be no trouble.

One of the most remarkable meetings held in this state for some time was that of the National Association of Tobacco Growers in Shelbyville, which was attended by about 2,500 to 3,000 growers from all parts of the country. The association ratified the action of the executive committee of the Burley Growers' association, which decided in a meeting at Winchester not to raise any tobacco next year. One of the features of the all-day meeting was a speech by Harry Welsinger of Louisville, a multi-millionaire planter, and formerly connected with the American Tobacco company, in which he advised the growers to "cut out" the crop for next year.

Heightened the Mystery.

London, Oct. 31.—Barbara Laponkhin, daughter of ex-Governor Laponkhin of Reval, Russia, who mysteriously disappeared after leaving the Aldwych theater here Oct. 24, returned to her friends voluntarily and as mysteriously as she disappeared. Her father, who reached London yesterday from St. Petersburg, went at once to the house where his daughter had been staying, and the whole family immediately went away, without leaving any address.

New Honor for the Press.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 31.—A Guthrie newspaper man, I. G. Niblick, will administer the oath of office to Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma. The inaugural ceremonies will be conducted here Saturday, Nov. 16, the day statehood for the two territories becomes effective. A feature of the occasion will be a barbecue in the afternoon. The inaugural ball will be held at night. Mr. Niblick secured a notary's commission at the request of Mr. Haskell.

Taft's Stay Cut Short.

Manila, Oct. 31.—As the result of voluminous cable correspondence between President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft, it is understood that the latter will leave Manila on Nov. 2, in order to reach Berlin at the earliest possible moment. The hasty departure of Mr. Taft will cut short his stay in the Philippines one week. The secretary will attend a banquet in his honor given by the American residents of this city this evening.

Serious Charges Against Actor.

New York, Oct. 31.—Six indictments have been found against Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, by the grand jury, on charges of criminal assault and abduction. The indictments were based on the testimony of Elsie Voeks, Helen Von Agen and Flora Wishton.

CURE FOR HAZING

President of North Carolina College Tells Boys to Fight It Out.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 31.—A recent case of hazing at the State Agricultural and Mechanical college caused President Winston of that college to reprove the student body, and in his remarks he advised a man-to-man fight in the open. As the result of this the freshman class sent challenge to the sophomores to meet them for a test of prowess on the athletic field. Accordingly there was a mass fight yesterday afternoon with about seventy-five on each side. Lieutenant Young, U. S. A., the commandant, and members of the junior and senior classes were present and allowed no fighting on the ground, and the scrapping match passed without serious injury to any of the participants.

Later the sophomores invited the freshmen to battle, when a fiercer struggle ensued, and there were many injured on both sides. There were sixty-five men on a side, and the noses of four cadets were broken, a number of eyes were blackened and many faces scratched. It is understood that another fight will take place.

The opposing sides line up, rush at each other and fight at will, but rough and tumble tactics are barred. President Winston and Lieutenant Young believe this will do away with hazing. Many friends of the college here condemn it.

JURY SETTLED IT

The Twelve Find That Prof. Bohannon Must Stand Trial at Bloomington.

THAT IS HIS LEGAL HOME

Defendant Contended That His Place of Residence Was Evansville But Jury Decided Differently.

Unusual Interest Attaches to Case That Has Bearing on Bloomington School Situation.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 31.—After a brief retirement the jury in the case of Prof. William Bohannon reached the conclusion that Bohannon was a resident of this city, and therefore must answer here for an alleged assault on Miss Nettie Northcott, one of his pupils in the high school at the time he was a teacher; also that the civil suit laying claim to $25,000, in which the girl is plaintiff, must be tried here. The merits of the case were not entered into, the only issue being a plea in abatement. An effort was made to prove that Evansville was the legal place for trial.

It is now believed that when the time of hearing comes both trials will be transferred to Lawrence county on changes of venue. Unusual interest attaches to this case because of the fact that Bohannon was one of the high school teachers who headed the controversy against the school board a few months ago, and a public demand was made that he be continued as a teacher. At the same time Miss Northcott, who is accusing him of assault, was one of his pupils, and she alleges that Bohannon, who is a man of family, pressed his attentions in the high-school room.

EVIDENCE BEFORE CORONER

Powder Mill Machinery Left Running With Nobody on Duty.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 31.—Coroner Leavitt has taken the testimony of two men employed in the glazing house at the Fontanet powder mill, and from them has obtained all the information that perhaps ever will be obtained as to conditions in the glazing house when the series of explosions started in that structure. Three men, Bright, Hawley and Powell, worked there in eight-hour shifts. Not one was in the mill at the time. Hawley was at home. Powell was going off duty and had met Bright some distance from the glazing house when the explosion occurred. Bright lost a leg and is now insane in the hospital. Powell was not injured.

Powell and Hawley say there had been trouble with the shafting getting hot, but Powell says that when he left a short time before the explosion it was running cold. The fact is brought out for the first time, however, by the testimony that the machinery was left running with no one on duty. It is said this was a common occurrence, not only in the glazing house, but in the wheel mill. Whether it was done in violation of rules or not is yet to be learned.

The complete report of the committee which took a census of the damaged houses and victims at Fontanet, shows 105 houses owned by occupants, 106 rented and in all occupied by 796 persons.

Lay in Wait With Shotgun.

Clinton, Ind., Oct. 31.—While William Carmocin was hauling gravel, one of his horses balked and Charles Collins began gulling him. This angered Carmocin, and there was a fight in which Collins was worsted. Collins then went home and armed himself with a single-barreled shotgun, with which he lay in wait for Carmocin, and when his enemy came within range, Collins fired, the shot taking effect in Carmocin's right leg. Carmocin, armed with the brake pole, pursued the would-be assassin, knocked him down and disarmed him. Several men, witnessing the affair, held Collins until the officers could be called, and he was formally arrested.

Burglars Abandon Job.

Spurgeon, Ind., Oct. 31.—A bold attempt was made by safe-blowers to crack the safe in the postoffice here. Before trying the postoffice the robbers entered the general mercantile store of Oxy & Co. They placed nitroglycerin in the crack around the rim of the door, but it failed to explode. They then abandoned the job for some reason. They then robbed the store and carried away many small articles and some postage stamps. The postoffice is in the same building, but the thieves got only a few stamps.

Little Child Caught by Train.

Knightstown, Ind., Oct. 31.—The three-year-old son of John W. Polk was instantly killed here by the Big Four local freight train. The little fellow eluded his mother and was playing near the tracks while the train was switching.

THE MOUNTAIN TOPPLED

Russian Town Overwhelmed and Fifteen Hundred People Killed.

Tashkend, Russian Turkestan, Oct. 31.—The little town of Karatagh in the Hussar district of Bokhara has been overwhelmed and completely destroyed by a landslide that followed the earthquake of Oct. 21. According to the latest reports of the disaster a majority of the inhabitants of Karatagh lost their lives.

The first reports of the casualties were exaggerated, the death list being placed as high as 15,000. Karatagh has about 2,500 dwellers, and there is reason to believe that about 1,500 were buried alive. Among those who survived the disaster are the governor of Karatagh and his mother.

Karatagh is remotely situated, and it takes a full week for news to get out from there, but according to one courier who came through, an enormous section of the Karatagh mountain, which practically hung over the town, broke loose and thundered down upon the village, which is almost completely buried.

Efforts are being made to get into communication with the survivors and learn the actual state of affairs and to send in such relief as may be required.

Passes and Franks Must Go.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 31.—The state railroad commission has issued orders prohibiting free transportation of freight or passengers by railroads within the state, except as under the provisions of the Hepburn law governing interstate commerce. The order also applies to express companies. The orders go into effect Jan. 1.

Gotham's Tax Rate Increased.

New York, Oct. 31.—The city budget for the forthcoming year as adopted by the board of estimate and apportionment, amounts to $143,572,266, an increase of $13,316,440 over last year. The tax rate for 1908 will be 1.60. This year's rate is 1.48.

Victims of Appetite.

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 31.—The bodies of four unidentified men were found by a railroad track walker at Maricopa. Investigation shows that death had resulted from drinking wood alcohol stolen from a box-car.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Ind., October 31. — A report compiled by R. B. Oglesby, bank clerk in Auditor of State Billheimer's office, shows that each $100 worth of stock in the state banks has an average value of $122.11. The report is made up from the statements furnished the auditor by the banks on the last call, issued Aug. 22. The total liabilities of the state banks then was $63,775,943.10. The increase in the resources of the state banks during the last six months was $2,300,000. Oglesby says that the reports indicate that the condition of the state banks is very good. The resources and profits during the past six months are larger than ever before. In many cities the state banks are following the example of the banks belonging to the Indianapolis Clearing House association in not permitting anyone to withdraw more than $100 a day. Most of the state banks are limiting their depositors to $25 a day, while some have fixed the maximum at $10.

A Thirteenth district man says Congressman Brick may yet have opposition for the congressional nomination. Colonel Charles A. Carlisle of South Bend has powerful friends who want to see him in the race and would be willing to take off their coats if he consents to run. Carlisle is a son-in-law of Clement Studebaker, the millionaire wagon maker. His family connections would insure plenty of money to make a thorough canvass of the district. Colonel Carlisle and Congressman Brick are none too friendly, it is said, their coldness being ascribed to the fact that Brick had a hand in bringing about the colonel's defeat for presidential elector in 1904. Carlisle's friends believe that he could

After many delays work was started today on the base for the Benjamin Harrison memorial in University park. Nearly $50,000 has been raised for this monument, and a magnificent bronze figure of the late president has been cast. It is not likely that it will be placed before next spring, but the rest of the work will be completed as soon as possible. There is still some bitter feeling among the late president's friends because they were not permitted to erect the memorial in front of the new federal building. The architects objected so vigorously that the monument commission finally was compelled to accept a site in University park overlooking the north side of the federal building.

There is a persistent story in circulation to the effect that ex-Congressman George W. More than one of his intimate friends have said that that is his present ambition. Cromer has always been able to control Delaware county in congressional fights in spite of all that his political enemies at home and outside the county could do. It is said that it would give Mr. Cromer infinite satisfaction to succeed Judge Joseph G. Leffler, who has been one of the leaders of the anti-Cromer crowd in Delaware county.

Governor Hanly is said to have insisted vigorously that the contract be let in small lots. Other members of the board protested, but in vain. The bids for the work will be received by the board on Nov. 15.

"A YARD OF TROUBLE."
(Greenfield Star).

A picture—not a Gainsborough nor a "Yard of Roses—but just an innocent little "tintype" taken by an "artist" at the county fair at Frankfort a few weeks ago, has stirred the police department there to the depths. The picture in question, it is alleged, shows patrolman Barrows of the force and ex-patrolman Wooten with three women of questionable reputation in attitudes that are at least undignified. One of the women is shown perched upon Officer Burrow's lap wearing his helmet and swinging his club like a true knight of the stick. The picture was sent to Indianapolis and enlarged and takes a prominent place in the investigation which was started at a called meeting of the city council for the express purpose of looking into the affair.

CONSTANT RAIN ON A SPOT.

Kentucky Interested in Shower Only Covering Twenty-five Square Feet.

The residents of Glasgow, Ky., have been interested during the past few weeks by the strange phenomenon of a fine mist or rain which has been falling in a space of about twenty-five feet square. Since the report was first circulated the scene has been visited by several hundred people, says a Glasgow special dispatch to the New York Times.

The space where the mist is falling includes the spot where Bill Bartly was slain last May by his brother-in-law, Van Smith, and since it was first discovered there has been no interruption day or night.

Among those who have visited the place during the past few days were State Senator J. C. Gillingwater and J. A. Conyers, connected with the United States marshal's office at Louisville. Both men walked slowly through the mist and said that their coats and hats plainly showed the effects of the water.

Here, in solitude and shade,
Shambling, shuffling, plantigrade,
Be thy courses undismayed!
Here, where Nature makes thy bed,
Let thy rude, half human tread
Point to hidden Indian springs,
Lost in ferns and fragrant grasses,
Hovered o'er by timid wings,
Where the wood duck lightly passes,
Where the wild bee holds her sweets—
Epicurean retreats,
Fit for thee, and better than
Fearful spoils of dangerous man.
In thy fat jowled devilry
Pier Tuck shall live in thee;
Thou mayest levy tithe and dole;
Thou shalt spend the woodland cheer,
From the pilgrim taking toll;
Match thy cunning with his fear;
Eat and drink and have thy fill;
Yet remain an outlaw still!

CURRENT COMMENT

Fresh Air and Health.

The attention being given to consumption at the present time is of general value to the country because of the emphasis laid upon the need of fresh air in the human system. Let the origin of the white plague be this or that, its advent preventable or not, the results of treatment show what the breathing of fresh air will do for the system. Fresh air is believed to work cures in some cases. It is known to restore tone to emaciated systems and be a boon to the sufferer.

If fresh air is a tonic for the sufferer it is a tonic for the normal man. We all know how good a whiff of fresh air is after confinement in air that is not fresh. The exhilaration is not a matter of fancy. The drier the air the better, and if purer when dry than when otherwise then the dry air has two points in its favor. The supply should not be fitful—confined solely to the hours of work and play. An active system might throw off impurities, but much of our time is passed indoors, without physical activity. This is when we read and sleep. Sound sleep is always refreshing, and if the air breathed during sleep be pure it is more than refreshing, for it builds up. Many people incline to the notion that fresh air is good in summer because it is so pleasant to get out into it. But it is good in all times. There is no special season for a fresh air tonic. The tonic works all the time and is needed all the time. And the indoor season is just the time to be wise and not let the supply get shut off.

Need of a Bigger Canal.

Those who have argued that the Panama canal should be constructed with a view to maritime conditions in the future have fresh ammunition in the present tendency to mammoth construction in battleships and other vessels which will wish to sail across the isthmus. Already the construction of ships which could not pass through the locks now being built has been begun. Progress in shipbuilding may be expected to bring about still larger ships before the canal is completed, a period at least five and probably ten years ahead of us.

The natural suggestion for this emergency is enlargement of the locks, which, according to present plans, are but a few feet wider than the widest ships now on the stocks. But the mere matter of enlarging the locks already planned would cost millions of dollars. And the size deemed ample for the accommodation of the largest ships afloat or under construction today may bar out the large ship of 1915 or 1917. The sea level canal proposition was lost in the last congress by a very few votes, and it may be that when the legislators of the Sixtieth congress are brought face to face with this apparent objection to a lock canal they will decide upon a sea level canal. It will take more time and more cash, but the result will be a deep strait connecting the waterway of the Atlantic with the waterway of the Pacific and one serviceable forever.

Ballooning.

One of the recent predictions of Santos-Dumont, the great aeronaut, was that ballooning would soon become popular and thus add to man's knowledge and ability in this field. He believes that aerial navigation is feasible and that persistent effort will remove every obstacle. In France, the home of aeronautics, women take flights in their own machines, unaccompanied by men, and a member of one of the numerous aero clubs can order a balloon by telephone just as readily as he can a cab or an auto car and take his friends for a float in the upper air.

Considering the number of ascents made in France within the last year, accidents have been comparatively rare. Chances of disaster are no greater than in an auto spin. Practical navigation of the air may not prove of real value to mankind, but the ballooning fad is training hosts of experts, who will not be satisfied until the highest development possible has been reached and the last secret of aeronautics solved.

We Are All Too Busy To Talk Politics.

By Speaker JOSEPH G. CANNON.

THE GREAT MASSES ARE NOT TALKING POLITICS NOW. THEY ARE BUSY. THEIR AMBITION IS TO SEE THAT NOTHING IS DONE TO MAKE THEM IDLE; TO CONTRIBUTE IN ANY HONORABLE WAY TO GIVING EACH MAN THE FULL REWARD FOR THE WORK OF HIS HEAD AND HANDS.

This country is very prosperous. There is the OLD STATE OF UNEASINESS IN WALL STREET, but Wall street should look into the country, where the factories and the forges are going, where the farmers are harvesting their crops and sending them to market, where well paid men are putting forth ENORMOUS PRODUCTION for our domestic markets and for the markets of the world.

Oliver Perry Morton, known as the war governor of Indiana, was born in the village of Salisbury, Wayne county, Ind., Aug. 4, 1823. In 1860 he was elected lieutenant governor, and two days after the inauguration he became governor by the resignation of Henry S. Lane. He was elected governor in 1864. ## A New Way to Propose.

[Original.]

Roland Nason prided himself on being original. Conventional methods were irksome to him. When the time came for him to go to Louise Allison's father to ask for her hand he disdained to put the case in the ordinary way—viz, "I love your daughter and will do my best to make her happy." He had a way of his own of making his proposition.

Entering the library, he found Mr. Allison with his evening paper, smoking. There was some of the trepidation usual to such situations in the young man's breast, but he did not show it. On the contrary, he assumed a very careless manner. He was little known to the man to whom he made his application, though he had been for some time devoted to his daughter. This is not strange. Even a couple courting really know little of each other, for they invariably assume to be what they are not and seldom disabuse each other till after they are married and come down from acting parts to life's real drama. Meanwhile their parents, unless the two families have been intimate, know less of their prospective son and daughter in law than the couple know of each other.

Without giving Mr. Allison even an opportunity to speak a civil word by way of welcome Nason began to state his case.

"I have come, sir," he said, "to tell you that your daughter loves me and has set her heart on me. It does not matter that I may be unworthy of her or that I cannot, at least not now, maintain her in the style to which she has been accustomed. I know that she has always been given what she has wanted. She wants me, and I don't doubt that you will not refuse her. I have the honor to ask that you will give me to her."

Mr. Allison when the young man began laid down his paper, took his cigar from between his lips and sat with it between his first and second fingers. There was no readable expression on his face. Indeed, it was impenetrable. It was some time after the request had been made before he moved; then he resumed his cigar, gave a few deliberate puffs and, again lowering it, said:

"You are quite right in assuming that my daughter has always been given what she has desired. No other course has been possible. From her earliest childhood she has dominated every one of her family by an iron will which would get anything she wished out of a brazen image. It doesn't matter that you can't afford to give her luxuries. She will have them so long as you have a cent left. Then after she has exhausted your resources she will doubtless come back upon me. Her marriage with you, however, will enable me to make an escape. The day that you are married I propose to take her mother abroad, and we shall fix our residence in some corner of the globe where your wife will not be able to find us. This is the happiest day I have known since the little curmudgeon was born. How soon can you arrange to be married?"

As Mr. Allison proceeded with his catalogue of terrors young Nason looked for some indication that he was speaking in jest. But there was not the slightest evidence of anything of the kind—no twinkle in the eye, no curve of the lips. And when he had finished he breathed a sigh, as if having shifted a great burden.

"Do you really mean that Louise is?"

"I am not so dishonorable as to permit a young man just starting in life to put his neck in a yoke without informing him of the facts. Louise is capable, attractive, and there is nothing mean about her. But you must be prepared when you marry her to give up the last vestige of independence. She will rule you as she has ruled me with a rod of iron."

"She has never shown?"

"No, she has not shown her defect to you. As you say, she wants you. She will have you. She has the sense not to give you a foretaste of what is to come. But should one of her cyclones get the better of her discretion that would make no difference in the end. She has set her heart on having you, and nothing can save you from her."

"Really," twitching nervously, "this is astonishing."

"Let me know," added the prospective father-in-law, taking up his paper, "at what date the wedding is to take place. My daughter will desire to make a splendid affair of it, and by way of preparation I must get in some loans I have out."

Having thus put an end to the interview, Mr. Allison began to scan the news and Nason withdrew. Louise was waiting for him in another room, but he slunk out of the front door and vanished down the street. Louise, surprised, went to the library.

"Hasn't Roland been here, papa?" she asked.

"Yes."

"And you have refused? Have you sent him away?"

"Not at all. He chose an original way of making his request, and I chose an original way of granting it."

"What did you tell him?"

"That you would rule him with a rod of iron."

"Why, papa?"

"All women rule, whether by a rod of iron or of flowers. Never mind, little girl. If he's not a fool he will come back."

He never came back, and Louise soon became satisfied to have him remain away. She married a far better man.

ALL READY FOR '07 HALLOWE'EN

Small Boy is in His Glee and on Tip-toe of Expectancy

WHAT AN OFFICIAL SAYS

Declare "Billtoppers" Were More Difficult to Handle Than the "Westenders"

Everything is in readiness for the annual season of devilment commonly called Hallowe'en, in Rushville. Tonight is the night and already small boys, whose minds run back to last year's escapades, are getting ready to repeat on even a larger scale the deviltry with which some small boys seem to be filled.

After these deeds are done the fond parents often smile and call the acts boyish pranks, but the people who suffer at the hands of these young Indians fail to see the joke and often there would be numerous broken heads on the morning after if the small boys were less fleet of foot than they happen to be.

Hallowe'en will be celebrated in Rushville after the usual fashion. The downtown stores have displayed a choice collection of favors for Hallowe'en parties and functions and for those who wish to dive a little deeper into the mysteries of the night false faces and half face masks are shown. Jack-o-lanterns in various styles and sizes are on exhibition and a large number of them have been sold.

A little glance at the society column for the past few days has shown that a number of parties will be given. Some of these will hold close to the old fashioned rule for Hallowe'en entertainments. The guests will bob for apples, the girls will look in the mirror for their future husbands, there will be quaint bits of old time pleasantry and the evenings will be happily spent. At other homes new ideas in entertainments of this sort will be introduced.

One of the city officials said today that most of the extra police would patrol the north part of the city. On occasions like these the "hilltoppers" are far worse than the "westenders."

THE CORN WORM.

Fall Plowing is the Best Remedy Known at Present.

The caterpillar locally known as the corn worm or ear worm is also known as the cotton boll worm in the south, where it bores into the cotton bolls; the tomato worm in some states, from its habit of boring into tomatoes during the early part of the season, and the tobacco bud worm in the tobacco growing states. This insect probably prefers green corn to any other of its many kinds of food plants.

In the latter part of September and through October the caterpillars that mature in corn go underground to a depth of from two to five inches and change to pupae, passing the winter in this condition. Early in the spring, if the ground remains undisturbed, the moths, which are of a dull clay yellow with indistinct markings on the forewings and expanding from one and a half to two inches, make their appearance and lay their eggs upon such plants as they can find. They lay from 200 to 500 eggs. The eggs are shaped like an inverted teacup, with the vertical ribs converging toward the apex. The caterpillars reach their growth in from two to four weeks. The moths appear in from two to three weeks later. The caterpillars are rather slender and nearly hairless and are from an inch and a half to two inches long. They vary in color from light green to brown and are marked with alternating light and dark brown stripes and lines running lengthwise of the body.

Combating the Insect.

Unfortunately the combating of this insect with any success in the cornfield is still an unsolved problem. It has been found by experiments that plowing in the fall and breaking up the underground sheltered pupae and exposing them to the vicissitudes of the weather will in almost every instance result in their death. However, it is not often practical to plow corn ground in the fall. The effect of such a measure would be to diminish the number of moths the following season.—George A. Dean in Kansas Farmer.

Feeding Silage.

There are many precautions which must be taken in feeding corn silage, not only because of its effect upon

The Spoilers.

By REX E. BEACH.

Copyright, 1905, by Rex E. Beach.

"We will not," says I. "I ain't goin' to do no Simon Legree stunts. It ain't man's size. Bein' English, you don't count, but I'm growed up."

"Nothin' would do him but those 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' dogs, however, and he had 'em imported clean from Berkshire or Sibeery or thereabouts, four of 'em, great big blue ones. They was as handsome and imposh' as a set of solid gold teeth, but somehow they didn't seem to savvy our play none. One day the cook rolled a rain bar'l downhill from the kitchen, and when them blooded critters saw it comin' they throwed down their tails and tore out like rabbits. After that I couldn't see no good in 'em with a spyglass."

"They ain't got no grit. What makes you think they can fight? I asked one day."

"Tight?" says H'Anglish. "My deah man, they're full blooded. Cost seventy pun each. They're dreadful creatures when they're roused. They'll tear a wolf to pieces like a rag, kill bears, anything. Oh, rully, perfectly dreadful!"

"Well, it wasn't a week later that he went over to the east line with me to mend a barb wire. I had my pliers and a hatchet and some staples. About a mile from the house we jumped up a little brown bear that scampered off when he seen us, but, bein' agin a bluff where he couldn't get away, he climbed a cottonwood. H'Anglish was simply frothin' with excitement."

"What a misfortune! Neyther gun nor hounds."

"I'll scratch his back and talk pretty to him," says I, "while you run back and get a Winchester and them ferocious bulldogs."

"Wolf hounds," says he, with dignity, "full blooded, seventy pun each. They'll rend the poor beast limb from limb. I hate to do it, but it'll be good practice for them."

"They may be good renderers," says I, "but don't forget the gun."

"Well, I throwed sticks at the critter when he tried to unclimb the tree till finally the boss got back with his dogs. They set up an awful holler when they see the bear—first one they'd ever smelled, I reckon—and the little feller crawled up in some forks and watched things, cautious, while they leaped about, bayin' most fierce and blood curdin'."

"How you goin' to get him down?" says I.

"I'll shoot him in the lower jaw," says the Britisher, "so he cawn't bite the dogs. It'll give 'em cavendence."

"He takes aim at Mr. Bear's chin and misses it three times runnin', he's that excited."

"Settle down, H'Anglish," says I. "He ain't got no double chins. How many shells left in your gun?"

"When he looks he finds there's only one more, for he hadn't stopped to fill the magazine, so I cautions him. "You're shootin' too low. Raise her."

"He raised her all right and caught Mr. Bruin in the snout. What followed thereafter was most too quick to notice, for the poor bear let out a bawl, dropped off his limb into the midst of them ragin', tur'ble seventy pun hounds an' hugged 'em to death, one after another, like he was doin' a system of health exercises. He took 'em to his bosom as if he'd just got back off a long trip, then, droppin' the last one, he made at that younger son an' put a gold filling in his leg. Yes, sir; most chewed it off. H'Anglish let out a Siberian wolf holler hisself, an' I had to step in with the hatchet and kill the brute, though I was most dead from laughin'."

"That's 'ow it is with me an' Glenster," the old man concluded. "When he gets tired experimentin' with this new law game of hisn, I'll step in an' do business on a common sense basis."

"You talk as if you wouldn't get fair play," said Helen.

"We won't," said he, with conviction. "I look on all lawyers with suspicion, even to old baldface—your uncle, askin' your pardon an' gettin' it, bein' as I'm a friend an' he ain't no real relation of yours, anyhow. No, sir. They're all crooked."

Dexty held the western distrust of the legal profession—comprehensive, unreasoning, deep.

"Is the old man all the kin you've got?" he questioned, when she refused to discuss the matter.

"He is—in a way. I have a brother, or I hope I have, somewhere. He ran away when we were both little tads, and I haven't seen him since. I heard about him, indirectly, at Skagway—three years ago—during the big rush to the Klondike, but he has never been home. When father died, I went to live with Uncle Arthur—some day, perhaps, I'll find my brother. He's cruel to hide from me this way, for there are only we two left, and I've loved him always."

She spoke sadly and her mood blended well with the gloom of her companion, so they stared silently out over the heaving green waters.

"It's a good thing me an' the kid had a little piece of money ahead," Dexty resumed later, reverting to the thought that lay uppermost in his mind, "cause we'd be up against it right if we hadn't. The boy couldn't have amused himself none with these court proceedings, because they come high. I call

'em luxuries, like brandied peaches an' silk undershirts."

"I don't trust these Jim Crow banks no more than I do lawyers, neither. No, sirree! I bought a iron safe an' hauled it out to the mine. She weighs 1,800, and we keep our money locked up there. We've got a feller named Johnson watchin' it now. Steal it? Well, hardly. They can't bust her open without a stick of 'giant' which would rouse everybody in five miles, an' they can't lug her off bodily—she's too heavy. No. It's safer there than any place I know of. There ain't no abscondin' cashiers an' all that. Tomorrow I'm goin' back to live on the claim an' watch this receiver man till the thing's settled."

When the girl arose to go, he accompanied her up through the deep sand of the lanellike street to the main muddy thoroughfare of the camp. As yet the plank and graveled pavements which later threaded the town were unknown, and the incessant traffic had worn the road into a quagmire of chocolate colored slush, almost axle deep, with which the store fronts, show windows and awnings were plentifully shot and spattered from passing teams. Whenever a wagon approached pedestrians fled to the shelter of neighboring doorways, watching a chance to dodge out again. When vehicles passed from the comparative solidity of the main street out into the morasses that constituted the rest of the town, they adventured perilously, their horses plunging, snorting, terrified, amid an atmosphere of profanity. Discouraged animals were down constantly, and no foot passenger, even with rubber boots, ventured off the planks that led from house to house.

To avoid a splashing team Dexty pulled his companion close in against the entrance to the Northern saloon, standing before her protectively.

Although it was late in the afternoon, the Bronco Kid had just arisen and was now loafing preparatory to the active duties of his profession. He was speaking with the proprietor when Dexty and the girl sought shelter just without the open door, so he caught a fair though fleeting glimpse of her as she flashed a curious look inside. She had never been so close to a gambling hall before and would have liked to peer in more carefully had she dared, but her companion moved forward. At the first look the Bronco Kid had broken off in his speech and stared at her as though at an apparition. When she had vanished, he spoke to Reilly:

"Who's that?"

Reilly shrugged his shoulders; then, without further question, the Kid turned back toward the empty theater and out of the back door.

He moved nonchalantly till he was outside, then with the speed of a colt ran down the narrow plank between the buildings, turned parallel to the front street, leaped from board to board, splashed through puddles of water, till he reached the next alley. Stamping the mud from his shoes and pulling down his sombrero, he sauntered out into the main thoroughfare.

Dexty and his companion had crossed to the other side and were approaching, so the gambler gained a fair view of them. He searched every inch of the girl's face and figure, then, as she made to turn her eyes in his direction, he slouched away. He followed, however, at a distance, till he saw the man leave her, then on up to the big hotel he shadowed her. A half hour later he was drinking in the Golden Gate barroom with an acquaintance who ministered to the mechanical details behind the hotel counter.

"Who's the girl I saw come in just now?" he inquired.

"I guess you mean the judge's niece."

Both men spoke in the dead, restrained tones that go with their callings.

"What's her name?"

"Chester, I think. Why? Look good to you, Kid?"

Although the other neither spoke nor made sign, the bartender construed his silence as acquiescence and continued, with a conscious glance at his own reflection while he adjusted his diamond scarfpin: "Well, she can have me! I've got it fixed to meet her."

"Bah! I guess not," said the Kid suddenly, with an infection that startled the other from his preening. Then, as he went out, the man mused:

"Gee! Bronco's got the worst eye in the camp! Makes me creep when he throws it on me with that muddy look. He acted like he was jealous."

At noon the next day, as he prepared to go to the claim, Dexty's partner burst in upon him. Glenister was disheveled, and his eyes shone with intense excitement.

"What'd you think they've done now?" he cried as greeting.

"I dunno. What is it?"

"They've broken open the safe and taken our money."

"What!"

The old man in turn was on his feet, the grudge which he had felt against Glenister in the past few days forgotten in this common misfortune.

TRIP OF THE POMMERN.

Victor of International Balloon Race Describes His Flight.

Oscar Erbsloeh of the German Aeronautic federation, who piloted the big balloon Pommern 880 miles, from St. Louis to Asbury Park, N. J., recently, told how he and his aid, H. H. Clayton, won the record breaking international cup contest, says the New York Journal.

"Our flight," said he, "was one of the pleasantest I have ever made. At the same time it was the longest, so far as distance and time are concerned. I can say that the race was a decided success. Our balloon, named after its owner, Freiherr von Howald of Pommern, won the first prize during the recent international race at Brussels, just six weeks ago. I was in the balloon then, and we sailed 630 miles and were in the air twenty-nine and a half hours. The trip just ended was a much longer one, for we remained in the air forty hours and covered more than 1,100 miles, although we can count only about 880 or thereabouts, the direct distance between St. Louis and Asbury Park."

"The basket is of the ordinary wicker kind, and on the sides of it were fastened large pieces of cork to keep us afloat if the balloon dropped into water. We also carried an anchor and the usual lengths of rope. Our outfit was very slender, because we wanted to carry as little weight as possible. The food was carried in two hampers, which we used as seats in the basket. We had tea and coffee, bread, chicken and mutton stew. We also carried mineral water, cider and a few bottles of wine. Oh, we did not fare badly at all in the air as far as the food question was concerned. We had our three meals a day just as regular as clock-work."

"Although Mr. Clayton had never made a balloon ascension before, he was familiar with all the tricks and therefore soon learned that the current away up was stronger than in the lower regions and that at the higher altitude the current was setting in an easterly direction. We figured out that with good luck and careful watching we might land in the New England states."

"So when the signal was given and we cast loose we arose first to an altitude of 150 meters and found a light breeze from the southeast which carried our balloon in a northwesterly direction. This would not do at all. Either we had made a miscalculation and would have to alter our course or we would have to look for other currents. Then we threw out some of our ballast and soon reached an altitude of nearly 3,000 feet. We threw four bags of sand overboard and found what we had been looking for—a good current which carried us on a north-northeasterly course."

"I am afraid we miscalculated our course a little and thought we were farther to the north than we really were. If we had gone as we had intended to go we would have landed farther to the eastward and would have covered a greater distance no doubt. But I blame the American charts for that. The very best charts I could get were those issued by the postoffice department in Washington, but they do not show the post roads nor do they locate the mountains. There were times when we were in doubt as to the exact locality and had to descend to make absolutely certain. We would call out to people below through a megaphone to tell us where we were. It was very unsatisfactory."

Saving Money For Sheep Men.
Supervisor E. Grandjean of the Payette and Sawtooth national forest has forwarded to headquarters at Washington his report of the work done by the hunters in exterminating wild animals in the Sawtooth and Payette forests, says the Idaho Statesman. The hunters have since between May 15 and Sept. 30 killed 261 coyotes and wildcats by trap exclusively. For every one killed the sheep men value it as $100 saved from their sheep, or a total of $26,100 saved by the hunters so far this season. It is the purpose of the government to keep up the work all winter.

WALL STREET PANIC.

Incidents of the Run on Trust Companies in New York.

ALL CLASSES REPRESENTED.

Venerable Woman's Unpleasant Experience—Reassuring an Anxious Depositor—Some Humorous Incidents. Profitable Speculation of Messenger Boys.

Wall street has been swarming lately like a hive of bees when over it was beaten the gong of financial terror. Events full of human interest have been witnessed during the runs made by depositors on some of the large trust companies in New York.

Something of the stress and uncertainty had been expected in the street, and in the early hours of the morning the police moved to their posts and prepared for the reception of the depositors of the Trust Company of America, says the New York Herald.

All classes of depositors were represented, for the refusal of the banks to accept checks drawn upon the trust company had made it necessary even for men with substantial accounts to present their checks in person at the window. Large depositors there were in plenty, but for the most part those who stood before the paying teller had comparatively small accounts, running from a few hundred dollars to fifteen or twenty thousand. Of the hundreds who were there not more than half a score of women were seen, and one of these was a detective.

One venerable woman who was near the window found to her horror that she had made out her check in pencil. She gave $5 to a man standing near her to take her place while she went to a neighboring desk and wrote her demand with a pen. When she returned her proxy was nowhere to be seen, and she had to go to the end of the line, where she still stood when the gong sounded for the last payment. She made a final argument, however, and after a four hours' wait succeeded in obtaining her money.

One of the largest deposits withdrawn in the course of the day was for $250,000, which was taken away by a young man who placed it in his overcoat pocket and left the place as unconcerned as though he had collected a gas bill.

Soon after 10 o'clock the other morning an anxious depositor entered the Carnegie Trust company and button-holed ex-Secretary Leslie M. Shaw, the president, who was on his way to his private office, says the New York World.

"Is the company all right?" demanded the depositor. "Are you sure we're perfectly solvent, Mr. Shaw?"

"Sound as a rock," answered the president. "No trouble within a mile of us."

"That's good," said the depositor, a relieved expression appearing on his face. "We can't be too careful of our interests these days, you know, Mr. Shaw. That's why I asked you."

The president noticed the man stop at the paying teller's window on his way out, and he wandered over and asked that official, "Is that man a large depositor?"

"Let's see," said the paying teller, looking over his desk. "Oh, yes. That's Mr. James Brown. He had a balance of $11.00, and he just drew $8."

"On the side lines," among the men who hovered on the outskirts of the long line of anxious depositors the other day, many airy remarks were passed by those whose money was in no jeopardy. A passerby asked the meaning of the crowd before the Trust Company of America's doors in Wall street.

"These men want to get their checks cashed," explained a loungeer on the side lines.

"They ought to know that a bank won't cash checks in these panicky times," announced the passerby. "The place to get checks cashed is a saloon."

"Oh, yes, I've got plenty of time to talk to you," said the pretty telephone girl at the Hotel Knickerbocker the other night. "The Wall street crowd isn't ordering cabs or inviting friends to dinner tonight. I think they've gone over to the Waldorf to tell one another how much money they lost."

Some wag tacked the following "market list" near the desk of one of the big hotels in New York the other night:

	Bid.	Asked.
Champagne .....	5c	$4.00
Automobiles .....	$20.00	75.00
Diamonds, per carat.....	1.00	1.50
Fur lined coats.....	2.00	5.00
Sealakin sacks.....	No bid.	$2000.500

John Shofeldt of Hackensack, N. J., came to the building of the Trust Company of America in a hansom cab, and with him in the cab were his wife, his mother and two children, says the New York Globe. He also had a steamer rug, a lot of provisions and was evidently prepared for a siege. He got into line about a block from the paying tellers.

About the only people that seemed to be making any real profit the other day were messenger boys or employed men who foresaw what was coming and got places in the line early in the morning on speculation. Ten dollars was several times paid for a place for an anxious depositor. Of course as the day went on and 3 o'clock got closer and closer the price went up, and not long after 1 o'clock a messenger boy sold his place about twenty feet outside the main entrance for $30.

THE INDIAN ELEVEN.

The Carlisle Gridiron Warriors Have Sensational Schedule.

PLAY FIVE LEADING TEAMS.

And Meet Them on Successive Saturdays—Glen Warner, Head Coach, Is the Man Behind the Scalp Lifters. Studios Athletes.

The Carlisle Indian football eleven took on its shoulders this season the heaviest burden for a team known in the history of the game. Think of it! The Indians' schedule called for the following games between Oct. 26 and Nov. 23:

Carlisle versus University of Pennsylvania, Carlisle versus Princeton, listen to gridiron chalk talks almost every evening. A feature of the season's work is a close study of the systems of play used by the school's several rivals. The week preceding each big game will be devoted to perfecting both offensive and defensive play best calculated to offset the work of the particular antagonist in view.

STEPPEN, THE ABLE CHICAGO UNIVERSITY QUARTERBACK.

Jimmie Johnson, the famous Carlisle player of other years, is assisting Warner, and the speed of the eleven is increasing daily under his instruction.

MEAT HARMS ATHLETES.

Up to Date Views of Eugene Christian, the Food Expert.

The wide discussion of the vegetable and uncooked food diet of the University of Chicago football eleven has again called attention to Eugene Christian, the food expert of 7 East Forty-first street, New York, who

MOUNT PLEASANT, GREAT CARLISLE INDIAN QUARTERBACK.

Carlisle versus Harvard, Carlisle versus Chicago and Carlisle versus Minnesota. All these big teams to be met on successive Saturdays!

Surely the "white man's burden" fades in comparison with that of the red man. The tireless energy of the Indian of story was certainly in the minds of those who planned this football campaign.

What college man would want the job? If he were handed such a schedule he would think his manager had gone mad. And yet the men who have learned what a wonderful machine the Indian is know that he will do the trick. All the "braves" now in training at Carlisle have their war paint on and want to get after the "big fellows" even if they advance almost in lock-step, one team hard and fast on the heels of another.

The best of the eastern college elevens consider two "big games" and those well along in the season quite enough of football at top speed for one year. But here is a team which takes five in a row and all of them with first class men of both the east and west as opponents.

Head Coach Glen Warner of Cornell fame is the man who is developing this remarkable array of redskins. The good feeling and friendly spirit exhibited among the players are more apparent than ever before, and Warner's straightforward method of dealing with them has a great deal to do with it. They all know that sooner or later they get their chance and that Warner, better than most men, can see possibilities in the Indian athlete.

Life on the Carlisle reservation is made interesting in football as well as in study, and that is why the players like to practice twice daily and founded the system used by Coach A. A. Staggs and his lusty gridiron stars. Mr. Christian has long advocated abstinence from the use of meat on the part of athletes and the public in general, and he is of the opinion that the example set by Coach Staggs will be followed extensively in the near future. Mr. Christian's belief is that practically all existing athletic records will be broken by men who live on uncooked and vegetable foods.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

The Latest Fad In Dress Is Jewelry Costuming.

NEW WAYS TO SET DIAMONDS

If the Gown Be Empire, My Lady Must Wear Jewels Set in This Style—Colored Precious and Semiprecious Stones Popular.

Fashion moves cautiously in exclusive jewelry shops. Its changes are made by gradations, not by arbitrary and radical dictates; hence it happened that one of the most learned students and dealers in ultra exclusive jewelry had to ponder before he answered the question, "What are the very latest fashions in jewelry?"

"Reduced to a phrase, I would say the latest thing is jewelry costuming," he said. "By that I mean the striving for perfect harmony between gown and jewelry. Formerly a woman who possessed a fine set of diamonds wore them with all her costumes—that is, at night. Diamonds and other precious stones were bought for their gem value. Now she must wear jewelry distinctly appropriate to the particular gown. Today, if the costume be empire, she must wear tiara and pendant earrings in empire style or none at all. Further than this, the precious and semiprecious jewels the woman of fashion wears must harmonize in color as well as in form of setting. The jewelry must be a part of the general color scheme."

This mandate from those "who must be obeyed" in such matters has led to the creation of the new fashions in the best class of jewelry. The use of small diamonds in "calibre," or cut square to a certain gauge and set with colored stones, is gaining. Instead of a piece being set with round stones, with spaces between, it now is "paved" with square stones, set edge to edge, making a solid glittering mass. The stones used for this purpose are small, some of them, "paving" diamonds, running 500 to one carat of weight. This practice permits of the multiplicity of form and color demanded by the creations of the costumer.

Naturally "jewelry costuming" has brought into favor all the colored precious and semiprecious stones, aquamarine, amethyst, topaz, jade—anything to get the color effect desired for special costumes.

Among the most exquisite novelties are the necklaces, belts and dog collars of plain black silk ribbon or velvet, supplied with clasps and designs in diamond "paving" set in platinum. Attached to these necklaces are diamond "paved" watches of incredible thinness.

Despised, or, rather, feared, for many years, the opal at last has come into ty conquering superstition. Now that the battle is won fashion is tumbling over itself to buy opals.

COLLAR IN ETRUSCAN DESIGN. Its own. It was a case of sheer beauty conquering superstition.

In the very exclusive shops coral is scorned, and the reason given is that it can be so easily and so closely imitated. Those who make a business of being exclusive will have nothing of any stone that successfully can be imitated by hot polloi. Gun metal as a factor in jewelry has been cast aside because it rusts.

Pearls are growing in favor and in price, for the chasm between the real and the imitation in pearls is so wide that the mistress who can afford to own the real is not afraid of being rivaled by her maid, who buys the imitation by the yard.

AMY VARNUM.

The Baked Cucumber.

Wherever there is located an inn, as the roadhouse is now being called, and the motoring party demands "something good to eat" its members may have cucumbers cooked for them after the ideas of the Persian minister, who has introduced the dish in Washington society. He has contributed more than his quota of recipes to the good dishes which tickle the Washington palate, but when it comes to cooking cucumbers those who have sampled the art of this epicurean can't say enough in his praise. The homely cucumber is first sliced out of recognition and then covered with the crumbs of a sweetened bread and baked after the way of apples. It is then served with a thick cream gravy flavored with Rhine wine. Of course, being a good Mohammedan, the minister frowns on the use of wine and explains that his French chef introduces it as a necessity. It makes good eating, however, as one guest puts it, and the laws of the Koran can be occasionally broken in so worthy a cause.

Johnson's Drug Store Confirm Guarantee on Hyomei, Cure for Catarrh

The question having been raised as to whether or not Johnson's drug store will refund the money if a Hyomei outfit does not do all that is claimed for it in curing catarrh, they want to state positively that this guarantee is an absolute fact.

A guarantee like this is the best proof that can be offered as to the curative powers of Hyomei in all catarrhal troubles. You do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues, Johnson's drug store takes all the risk.

If you have catarrh, try this wonderful medicated air of Hyomei. It does not drug or derange the stomach, but is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that its medication reaches the most remote air cells in the nose, throat, and lungs, where any catarrhal germs may be lurking. It quickly destroys them, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane and vitalizes the tissues so that catarrh is no longer possible. You can lose nothing by giving Hyomei a trial, nothing but the catarrh and that is good ridance.

The price of the complete outfit is but $1.00; nothing if it fails to cure. Get an outfit from Johnson's drug store to-day and begin its use at once.

The recent rains have caused the clover threshers to throw the tarpaulins over their machines, as it will be a few days before the clover will be dry enough to hull.

We Recommend Sexine Pills

It makes no difference what is the cause of one's weakness. If it be a tonic that is needed, Sexine Pills will do more than any other tonic. They are the one tonic that strikes at the bottom of all weakness, the nerve centers. They send new vitality bounding through the body, producing a glow and tingle that revive the languid energies of youth. Sexine Pills begin by bringing quiet repose to fluttering nerves, and inducing restful and refreshing sleep. #### The Rattler Doesn't Bite.

Speaking quite strictly, a rattlesnake does not bite, but strikes. The same thing is true of the copperhead and moccasin. Their fangs are hinged, so to speak, and when the snake is at ease and at all times except in the very act of striking they are closed up tight against the roof of the mouth. When the snake strikes it draws its body back into a tense spiral, the head is raised with the jaws widely distended, the body is shot forward with terrific speed, and the curved fangs, now at right angles to the jaw, are driven deeply into whatever they come in contact with. The jaws are never closed into even the semblance of a bite.

"I suppose you noted the disposition to make class distinctions in Europe?" "No," answered Mrs. Cumrox in a tone of disappointment; "Europeans seem to go on the principle that all Americans are rich without realizing that some of us may be vastly richer than others."—Washington Star.

OLEOMARGARINE IS IN DEMAND

State Pure Food Commissioner Says it is as Good as Butter

COTTON SEED OIL DEMAND

Is Also in Evidence—Both are Highly Nutritious and Healthful

H. E. Barnard, State pure food and drug commissioner, says that the present high price of butter, lard and other fats used in cooking are bound to produce an increased demand for oleomargarine and similar articles. Mr. Barnard says that useful foods of this character are being condemned, although they are cheap, palatable and wholesome, but they never come into use because of the prejudice against them.

"One can buy an article as palatable as butter for half the price if he is willing to ask for oleomargarine," said Mr. Barnard. "The high price demanded for butter is already increasing the demand for 'oleo.' The same is true of cotton seed oil. As a cooking oil instead of lard, this oil is just as cheap, nutritious and as palatable as olive oil and as meritorious when sold under its real name. The extremely high price of flour will undoubtedly cause increased consumption of corn meal and other products, a condition not at all undesirable, as cornmeal contains more fat and less nitrogen than wheat flour. This makes it a better winter food than a summer food.

Cacti Soap is Different

Cacti Soap is not made out of the refuse from a packing house, it contains no animal fat or grease of any kind. It is made wholly from pure vegetable oils that are clean and good enough to eat. It is made in a clean factory and is safe to use for the toilet, bath and shampoo.

Get a cake of Cacti Soap today and see for yourself. It lathers better than anything else made, and we heartily recommend it to our trade.
